S. F. JURY FAILS TO INDICT MURDERER OF GAME WARDENS

The San Francisco county grand jury last Monday night failed to indict Antone Anderson, giant Swede fisherman, for the killing of Jack Burke and Allen Curry, game wardens, on April 30.

The jury's vote was reported as eight for indictment, four against, and one juryman not voting. Ten votes are required for indictment.

This action of the San Francisco county grand jury means that Anderson can be prosecuted only by San Mateo county.

Anderson engaged in a gun battle with the two game wardens, Curry and Burke, when they boarded his boat on the bay off Burlingame, to arrest him for alleged violations of the fishing laws.

After Anderson had killed Burke and Curry, he steered his boat to Meiggs wharf, leaving the two men lying where he had shot them down.

An old statute makes it possible for a man who commits a crime on uavigable waters to be tried in any county he may have passed through on the trip during which the crime was committed.

Anderson is still in St. Francis hospital, recovering from wounds inflicted during the gun battle aboard his craft. It is understood in San Mateo county that a wealthy relative has employed a noted San Francisco law firm to defend the slayer, and that the move to have him tried in San Francisco was made because of feeling in San Mateo county.

BURKE LEAVES $15,000 ESTATE

John W. ("Jack") Burke, former San Mateo county game warden, killed in the bay duel with Anton Anderson, Crockett fisherman, on April 30, left an estate valued at $15,000, according to the petition for letters of administhation filed in Superior Court last Saturday by his widow, Mrs. Margaret Burke, of 298 Vista Grande avenue, Daly City.

The estate consists of real property in excess of $12,000, and personal property in excess of $2,500. It was all community property, the widow states. In addition to the widow, the deceased is survived by two sons, John, aged 23, and George, aged 20, and a daughter, Margaret Burke Martin, aged 23. William H. Schooler, San Francisco, is attorney.

OFFICERS INSTALLED BY CROCKER P. T. A.

The members of Crocker P. T. A. held their regular meeting on Thursday, May 25, President Mrs. Ivy Alexander presiding.

The members of the Association were pleased to have with them Miss V. Roussell, district president,, Mrs. L. Landini, fourth vice-president elect of the district, also Mrs. Putney, publication chairman, and Mrs. Page of Woodrow Wilson-Vista Grande P. T. A.

After the business of the day had been acted upon, the president gave a portion of her report from the state convention held at Riverside. This was given as a diary, starting as she did from Third and Townsend, her plan to make the convention as real as possible to those unable to attend. The balance of the report will be given at the meeting in June, as it was too lengthy for one time.

The officers for the coming year were then installed by Miss Roussell in a very fitting and impressive manner. Those installed and their offices are as follows: President, Mrs. Julia V. Jordon; Vice-President, Mrs. M. Chesney; Recording Secretary, Mrs. O. Pauw; Financial Secretary, Mrs. A. Eason; Treasurer, Mrs. I. Yates; Historian, Mrs. Ivy Alexander; Parliamentarian, Mrs. E. Bolger; Auditor, Mrs. H. Grantham.

Mrs. O. Pauw favored the group with two vocal selections, "Silvia" and "The Sacrament." These were greatly enjoyed by those present.

Mrs. O. Pauw was chosen by the Crocker P. T. A. as their spokesman in presenting their president with a token of love and affection in the form of a most elaborate hand-painted sandwich tray, which was a great surprise and delight to the president. In thanking the members she expressed the thought that her greatest gift has been the kindly co-operation and help of the officers and members during the past term.

The outgoing officers were the hostesses of the day. Two large cakes were in prominence, one bearing "Greetings, Crocker, 1930-31," which added much to the joy of the occasion.

The meeting then adjourned, with two members added to the roll, Mrs. Woodside and Mrs. Young, and a profitable afternoon spent. It is planned to meet again at Fleishacker's play grounds, for an all day picnic, on June 19.

BETTER BUSINESS BETTER LIVING

Most of our alloted span of life—three score years and ten—is spent in living.

Inasmuch as no two people are alike, our efforts vary widely in attaining this end. Statistics available point out that less than half our inhabitants can produce more food and raw materials than all of us can consume. In view of this fact, it becomes plainly apparent that more than one-half of our population must earn a livelihood by making, distributing and marketing, which serve as a benefit to individuals as a whole.

There was a time when families were a self-contained unit—producing all the family needs. In the ever-forward march of progress that condition has long since failed to obtain. Today, we are dependent upon one another to successfully carry on the Business of Living. This has brought about the happy solution of greatly improved conditions. It bespeaks a co-operation of industry which affords an opportunity of expansion along all lines of business.

Proper co-operation of business endeavor means Better Business in a bigger way. And we all are forced to admit that business today is carried out on the highest plane in the history of mankind.

Owing to bigger and better business improvements in merchandising, indviduals are afforded an opportunity to improve their buying intelligence. Today the standard of salesmanship is a most extensive requirement. These facts could be enumerated on down the line indefinitely, as success today demands that business render the very best and most honest service possible. "He profits most who serves best" is truly more applicable today than ever before.

Better Business—Better Living, and the reverse—Better Living, Better Business as it appears on another page of this issue of the Daly City Record, which has been made possible by a group of our progressive business and professional men, is well worth your time spent in reading it.

Maybe you have an idea along this line that will be of interest to our readers. If so, it would be appreciated by the sponsors of this page if you would write it up and hand it to the editor of this paper. Gladly will it be given space in a subsequent issue.

LOCAL PASTOR IS GUEST AT WILLIAM TAYLOR HOTEL

The pastor of Grace church was the guest Tuesday of Dr. Walter J. Sherman, of the William Taylor Temple M. E. church. With a number of others Rev. Stevenson enjoyed a luncheon in one of the banquet halls, after which they were shown over the building from the basement to the twenty-eighth floor. An inspection of rooms disclosed suites of unusual elegance, with every wish of the guest anticipated. The more luxurious apartments rent for the modest sum of $20 a day (more or less). The pastor says he enjoyed the use of some of these apartments for a few minutes. The place of worship was pronounced to be a cathedral. No expense has been spared to make it a place of great beauty and inspiration.

WIFE OF BALL PLAYER SEEKS $25,000 DAMAGES FOR INJURIES

Mrs. Helen Suhr, wife of Gus Suhr, of the Pittsburg Pirates, the former Miss Helen Hart of Los Banos avenue, filed a complaint on Monday against Thomas Scoble, Jr., for $25,000 damages, growing out of an automobile accident. Miss Selda Bloch, who was riding in the Scoble car with Mrs. Suhr, was also injured. The occupants of the car were injured while riding on the Fitch Mountain road, half a mile east of Healdsburg, when Scoble's car left the road, hit a telephone pole and turned over, on May 18.

PRESBYTERIAN LADIES ENJOY WEEKLY LUNCH

The Ladies' Aid of the Presbyterian church enjoys a lunch every Wednesday at 1 o'clock. The ladies of the church meet in the Social Hall for the purpose of sewing the necessary articles for household use for pleasure and profit. A committee of two is chosen for each meeting and the committees are very successful in providing a delicious lunch at a modest price.

MERCHANTS BEAT BOLDERMAN NINE

Performing like a good baseball team should, the Daly City Merchants supported Sam Hawley's pitching to perfection, defeating the Bolderman Chocolate nine, 7 to 3, on the high school diamond.

The local boys were right Sunday, especially Hawley. Sam struck out seven batters and walked three.

Most of the Merchants' batters garnered hits when hits meant runs. Del Aherns, catcher, led the team with three for four. Maloney obtained a single in three trips to the plate to keep his record of at least one hit a game clean. Pat Sloan's triple was the longest hit of the day. Cruchoff drove in two runs with a pair of singles.

An infield combination that could have shown up the Daly City quartet Sunday will be hard to find. Rettig, Kennedy and Toole turned in a total of five sparkling plays, while Sloan stopped several wild throws at first base to make putouts.

Daly City completed three double plays to pull Howley out of a hole on two occasions. They were: Kendedy unassisted to Sloan, Maloney to Hawley, and Toole to Rettig to Sloan.

Manager Ed. Cavagnaro has signed two new players who will bolster the tem. Weckerle, an all around man, formerly with Blum Sweet Shop, is one; and Fabin, a good pitcher, who chucked for the Yeomen, is the other.

The high school board received a compliment from the Bolderman players in this contest. They were unanimous in agreeing that we have a swell diamond in Daly City.

BOARD SEEKS BIDS FOR SCHOOL BONDS

Bids will be opened on June 2 by the San Mateo county board of supervisors for the purchase of $35,000 worth of Hillsborough grammar school bonds. The money will go to the building fund of the school district for the purpose of making additions to the present school building.

A resolution accepting the returns of the special school board election in Hillsborough May 5, which carried 25 to 0, and calling for bids, was adopted at Monday's meeting of the board. Arthur H. Reddington, attorney for the school district, presented the resolution.

Irene Farrell, clerk of the Three Cities Mosquito Abatement district, will be notified that F. D. Lorton has been reappointed trustee on the abatement board, in answer to a query received from the clerk. Lorton's term expired May 1.

A decision on the size of the pipes that will be laid in the proposed Millbrae Villa water district was delayed when petitioners of the district failed to appear before the board. The matter was continued to June 2, when protests will be heard on the petition for formation of a Millbrae "public utility" district for fire and domestic purposes, which was filed a week ago.

The application of the Natural Gas Corporation of California for a franchise to supply gas to residents of Half Moon Bay and Pescadero, was given further continuance. The board set June 2 as the date for hearing.

The application of C. Kenneth Page, Redwood Ciity, for the position of state traffic officer in this county, was filed.

The county auditor and the district attorney were authorized to sell the sixteenth bond of the Pescadero grammar school issue, voted in 1928, to provide an immediate fund of $1,000 for furnishings in the coast-side school.

A communication was received from the State Railroad commission, stating that its attention had been called to the fact that when traffic is detoured from important county highway roues, dute to construction work, that such detours are occasionally over routes that include a grade crossing of main line railroad, causing a condition justifying provisin of additional protection during the period of the detour.

The board was asked to notify the commission of any such condition that might arise in this county, so that adequate protection can be furnished.

INTERESTING SERMONS AT CALVARY BAPTIST

Rev. Charles Woessner, pastor of the Calvary Baptist Chapel, 5724 Mission street, announces the following sermon topics for next Sunday: In the morning, "What Happened at Pentecost?" In the evening, "God's Sacrifice."

A story has been often told of the fondness of parents for their children; how in a famine in the East a father and mother were reduced to absolute starvation, and the only possiblity of preserving the life of the family was to sell one of the children into slavery. So they considered it. The pinch of hunger became unbearable; their children pleading for bread tugged so painfully at their heartstrings that they must entertain the idea of selling one to save the lives of the rest. They had four sons. Who of these should be sold? It must not be the first; how could they spare their first-born? The second was so strangely like his father that he seemed a reproduction of him, and the mother said that she would never part with him. The third was so singularly like the mother that the father said he would sooner die than that this dear boy should go into bondage; and as for the fourth, he was their Benjamin, their last, their darling, and they could not part with him. They concluded that it was better for them all to die together than willingly to part with any one of their children. Do you not sympathize with them? Of course we all do. Yet, God so loved us that, to put is very strongly, He seemed to love us better than His only Son, and did not spare Him that He might spare us. He permitted His son to perish from among men "that whosoever believeth in Him might not perish, but have everlasting life."

RECITAL BY LOCAL TEACHER

There will be ball games, and almost every kind of sport known. There will be races for the fat men and the thin men, for women and girls, for children from 6 years of age and up; foot races, sack races, hurdle races, and three-legged races, and prizes will be awarded to the winners of all the games and races.

There will be good music and dancing all day for those who like dancing.

While each family is supposed to bring their own lunch, there will be plenty of hot coffee, hot dogs, rolls, and ice cream, all served free on the grounds, but the people must bring their own cups for the coffee to be served in.

All who intend going with the crowd will assemble at the City Hall at 9:30 Sunday morning, as that is the time set for the start. Bring your family. If you have no family, bring your machine and take as many people as you can from the City Hall to the grounds.

Starting from the City Hall, the caravan will move to the county line, or Templeton avenue and Mission street, thence south on Mission street through Daly City and Colma and on to the picniic grounds.

Turn to the right at Mills Memorial hospital, San Mateo, and follow the Half Moon Bay road to the picnic grounds at Oak Cove Park, about two miles west of San Mateo. The committee is indeed fortunate in being able to secure these beautiful grounds, so easily accessible to the great crowd that is expected to be there.

The state traffic police will escort the caravan from Daly City to the grounds and remain on duty there all day.

This is a chance for the people of Daly City to have one good time. Don't miss it.

SAN MATEO COUNTY POPULATION DOUBLE

San Mateo county's population is 77,135, according to preliminary totals in the April census, released from the office of Dr. W. C. Bailey, census supervisor, San Jose.

The gain was 40,354 over the count of 1920, an increase of 109 per cent. The gain for the past ten years was approximately four times that of the decade previous to 1920. The 1920 census gave the county 36,781. That of 1910 gave the total as 26,585.

The April count in the Second township, which includes San Mateo and the greater part of Burlingame and extends south to include San Carlos, was 24,799. The township registered a gain of slightly more than 100 per cent since 1920, the largest percentage of gain in any of the five throughout the county.

In the Fifth township, that including Pescadero and San Gregorio, only thirty-four more persons were counted in the April census than in the census ten years ago.

The gain in the Second township was 12,337.

The figures reveal that the First township, extending from the San Francisco county line to North Burlingame, with 28,497, has the largest population among the five townships. The First had 13,573 in the 1920 count. The Third township, from Redwood City south to the Santa Clara line, has 20,404, according to the April census, and had 7,606 in 1920. The Fourth township, which includes Half Moon Bay, has 2,182 and had 1,121 in 1920. The Fifth township figures are 1,253 for the census this year, and 1,219 for the count in 1920.

TIME SOLVES EVERYTHING

The story was told by Mrs. Warren, wife of Henry E. Warren, president of the Warren Telechron Company, of Ashland, Massachusetts, and the story is true. Being naturally fond of watches and clocks, Mr. Warren owns timepieces of all descriptions. He had one watch which he prized beyond all others. Mr. Warren, returning one day from a jaunt through the woods, found that the watch was gone! It had fallen from his pocket!

A cow on a neighboring farm died a few days later. The cause was a puzzle until a post mortem was conducted. What should be found in the cow's stomach but Mr. Warren's prized watch.—Forbes Magazine.

P. T. A. DELEGATES REPORT CONVENTION PROCEEDINGS

The Woodrow Wilson-Vista Grande P. T. A. held their regular meeting on Tuesday, May 20, in the sewing room of the Woodrow Wilson school, President Mrs. Page presiding.

All present listened with pleasure to the reports of delegates to the Riverside convention, May 5 to 9. Mrs. Page read her report of the first three days, and Mrs. Woodside continued with the events of Thursday and Friday. These two delegates brought home a very impressive word picture of the good the P. T. A. is doing all over the state. Mrs. Page also gave a report on the district convention and picnic on May 16, at Belmont. All who were able to attend enjoyed the day thoroughly, and the instalaltion of the new district officers was impressive.

June 6 has been chosen as the evening to entertain the fathers; also this will be the installation of new officers. It was also decided to entertain the graduating class in some way they would enjoy most.

The members were glad to see Mrs. Alexander, Mrs. Jordan, Mrs. Chesney and Mrs. Bolger, from Crocker P. T. A., with them, and hope they will come often. After the close of the meeting, home made cake and coffee was served to about twenty-five.

AUTOMOBILES COLLIDE

On Manday, May 11, in front of the Vista Grande school, a Nash sedan driven by Benjamin E. Apts, residing at the Press Club in San Francisco, was hit by a Dodge coupe driven by Mrs. S. C. Nelson, of Nagle street, San Francisco. The two headlights on the Nelson car were broken, and two dents in the fenders. Mr. Apts said he was driving south on Mission street, and when he was near Vista Grande school, a boy ran from the west side and in front of his car. He stopped short and the Dodge car ran into his car from the rear.

Manager (to new office boy): "So you finally got back with my cigars. Didn't I tell you to hurry?"

Boy: "Yes, sir. You told me to be on my toes every minute and I had a little trouble getting through the crowd that watched me cross the street."

Fresno has been selected as the city for the 1930 Armistice celebration by the Fresno County American Legion and Auxiliary Council. The celebration was held in Sanger last year.

The destroyers Wicks, Buchanan, Percival and Somers arrived at the Mare Island navy yards from San Diego. The Wicks and Buchanan are to be reconditioned for active service. The others are to be scrapped.

New American liners, representing an investment in excess of $78,000,000, will be operating from the port of San Francisco within three years. Nineteen fast super liners are included in the list of ships now planned or building for the service from that port. Many of them will fulfill mail contracts recently awarded by the government.

Arrangements are being made at Red Bluff to entertain 250 members of the women's auxiliary of the American Legion June 4, when the annual convention of Area No. 1 will be held there. Delegates are expected from as far south as Vallejo and from as far north as the Oregon line.

The Biggs City Council had gone on record as favoring installation of a new steel water tank to furnish water for that city. The tank would replace the present wooden tank, declared by engineers to be unsafe.

Construction of highways in the national forest areas of the West will be almost doubled as a result of the action of Congress in increasing the annual appropriation for forest roads from $7,500,000 to $12,500,000. With its eighteen national forests, California will benefit particularly by this increase in funds, as the forest area roads will be allotted an additional $800,000 a year, increasing this State's share to $1,900,000 annually The increased amount is in line with the policy of making appropriation for forest roads equivalent to 10 per cent of the total Federal-aid appropriation, which was recently raised to $125,000,000 annually. This measure represents a successful climax to a long campaign on the part of organized motordom to secure greater attention to the road-building needs of the West.

Immediate construction of a new border station at Fort Yuma for state motor vehicles and agricultural inspectors was assured when bids for the structure were opened by the State Department of Architecture at Sacramento. The Holland Construction Company of San Diego was low bidder at $19,374. A. R. McMurray of Los Angeles submitted the lowest bid for construction of physicians' residences at Pacific Colony, Spadra, and Patton State Hospital.

Constitutionality of the state law which prohibits possession of salmon during the closed season is attacked in federal court in a supplemental complaint filed before Federal Judge Frank H. Kerrigan. The supplemental complaint was filed by permission of the court and is expected to result in a hearing of the question by a circuit judge and two district judges as required of constitutional questions. It was filed by Attorney Marshall B. Woodworth, attorney for members of the Noyo Fish Association and Sausalito Fish Association. It is contended that the law is unconstitutional because it prohibits possession of salmon caught outside the three-mile limit during the closed season, but admits from other states salmon that has been caught in the same manner. Judge Kerrigan previously ruled in favor of Fish and Game Commission because the question had not been properly raised.

Back in 1924 Phil Simpson, whereabouts unknown, carved his name and the year on the back of a turtle. Frank Dayton, oil truck driver, recently found the turtle ambling down the middle of the Pacific highway, near Corning.

Californians like their reading early and often. With 176 daily newspapers now being printed in the State, having an estimated circulation of 2,797,000 figures released by the research department of the California State Chamber of Commerce show that newspaper readers have increased 14 per cent during 1929.

A $10,000 office and warehouse building will be built at Tulare by the Standard Brands Company of California, according to a recent announcement. The building will be made San Joaquin Valley headquarters of the concern.

M. J. Reynolds, Tipton construction employe, defeated his fellow worker, Tony MacIntyre, in Tulare County's longest pushmobile contest when he negotiated the twenty miles between Porterville and Tipton in two hours and five minutes. Pushmobiles used were mounted on roller skates and were foot-propelled.

County supervisors have ordered a technical survey of a proposed 11-mile modern highway, between Grass Valley and Colfax, preparatory to advertising for bids this summer. The survey was ordered on request of the Grass Valley Lions Club. Chicago Park and Peardale land owners have approved the proposed road, which will cut through those sections.

Hooligan, winner of the 1929 jumping frog contest at Angels Camp, is missing. J. B. Pecchinino, owner of Hooligan, is mightily peeved and makes no bones about the extreme probability that Hooligan, together another big frog, was stolen by somebody. Hooligan and the other missing frog were entered in the 1930 jumping frog contest to be held in Angels Camp next month. Pecchinino notified Sheriff C. R. Dorroh. The sheriff and a posse of deputies began a search for the missing amphibians.

Married women teaching in Gridley elementary schools will lose their positions at the end of the present school year, the board of trustees have decided. The board, believing that the public disapproves of hiring married women as teachers, made an order relieving all such women of jobs excepting those who have tenure. They may be re-employed but only on a temporary basis.

The Monterey County Board of Supervisors have accepted the first deed for construction of the new Salinas-Watsonville highway. The deed was from H. P. Garin and Elsie Garin and involved property in the Graves district. Only few deeds will be necessary to acquire property for the highway, it was said. Delegations from Klamath, Jackson and Josephine Counties in Oregon and Siskiyou and Del Norte Counties in California heard William P. Ellis, Grants Pass, Ore., attorney, present Crescent City as the government's best opportunity in the country for a profitable harbor investment. Ellis' glowing description was made at Crescent City before Major E. H. Ropes, district engineer of the United States army engineer's corps at the opening of the Crescent City harbor hearings. Representatives of inland cities and chambers of commerce backed up Ellis' plea with testimony and requests that the harbor be completed by federal appropriation and that a water outlet be given what Ellis described as "the most remote rich producing area in the United States," from the standpoint of railroad freight rates to consuming centers. A physical survey of the harbor, which, together with the hearing, was requested by the Senate committee, is now being made under the direction of army engineers. An economic survey of potential port tonnage also is being made.

Efforts of the Redwood Empire Association's nine counties highway committee to eliminate many dangerous curves near Sausalito were brought close to fruition when Bert B. Meek, state director of public works, announced plans for a new straight line route from Sausalito to Alto. This will link with the new Alto-San Rafael alignment of the Redwood highway at Alto, giving a straight line artery from Sausalito to San Rafael. The new highway link is designed to be ultimately extended to the bridgehead of the projected Golden Gate span. The new state highway route will cross a portion of Silvo Island and the upper reaches of Richardson's Bay by causeway. At Manzanita, an overpass will span the railroad right of way, the tracks of which it will parallel into Sausalito.

Inauguration of a new construction program for educational institutions had been announced at Sacramento by Vierling Kersey, director of education. Proposed new construction and improvements will aggregate an expenditure of more than $1,500,000. The Radio Club is composed of representatives of service and civic societies of Merced, to finance work of reducing interference.

Transfer of the Weaverville Electric Company to the Pacific Gas and Electric Company is expected this month, according to J. R. Blair, who announced the sale at Weaverville.

Carla rose to her feet and gazed past him into darkness, and so strangely did her eyes dwell on empty space that Paul could only look at her and wait for her to speak.

"A way out," she said, after a little, as though to some one she was seeing beyond their circle of light. "God coming to us like this, taking us back to freedom and—life. And this little world—ours—gone!"

Paul knew the thing he wanted to say would come in a moment, the thing he had made up his mind to say to her when he came down from the rocks. It was a fury of emotion, rolling up slowly through his birthright of stoicism into a storm of speech—a passion of desire breaking loose, a bitterness against life as it had been given him to live, a determination to turn it his own way at last.

Before she could move his arms were about her.

"I have lived a hell in this place," he cried. "Not because I was afraid to die, but because in dying I knew I would lose you. Only in life can I have you, and I want life because of that. You say it is God showing us a way out! It is just as true that God gave you to me here. That world up there means nothing to me—except with you in it. It, too, has been a hell for me. Now I'm going to make it a heaven. I won't let man-made law and convention stand in the way of what is right and intended to be. You are mine, and I shall have you and keep you, one way or the other. We'll face the world together, and tell it so—or we'll go out there and never let it know we live. It is for you to say which it shall be!"

Steadily her hands had pressed against him, and with that pressure came such a change in her face that the fierceness of Paul's arms relaxed, and he saw an idol crushed and broken in her eyes. To the level of that ruin he had sunk his own ideal of Carla. He let her move away from him, and stood with a grim, set face before her.

"I'm sorry," he said. "I know you are thinking that I am vile and unclean."

"Not that," she spoke quickly. "I would rather think I am the one who is unclean."

That was all she said, and he made no effort to answer her. Words became futile, even impossible, as she looked at him. What he might have said, his pleading, the arguments he had built for himself, and for her, crumbled under the tragedy which had come like a sickness into her white, beautiful face—a tragedy that was filled with appeal, with pain, and for a moment or two with an utter loneliness, as if she had lost something which could never come back to her. He had seen the same look in her eyes the night her mother died. Then it had filled him with a great pity. Now its tenderness, its yearning for a thing gone, shook him to the foundation of his soul. He saw Carla as he had always known she would be when it came to her love for a man. Only a love that had no scar of ugliness upon it would she take to her breast and hold there. The memory of love, its burned-out ash, a love that was crippled and blind but clean, she would cherish with the sacred faithfulness of an altar nun. But not such a love as he had offered her—a theft, though it could be made a legal theft, from another woman. Even as he felt this crushing sense of his loss of her, another emotion, a freeing of his spirit, a rejoicing with his grief, entered into him. Carla, as she stood before him, he could worship through all eternity. The Carla he had asked for, yielding to him, would have descended out of heaven to the level of his own debasement. Clearly as she had seen his passion and felt the crush of his arms, Carla now saw this change in him, and slowly, believing joyously, a miracle wrought itself in her face, and all that Paul had seen broken down built itself up again.

Softness came into her mouth, and she smiled at him.

"Shall we go, Paul?"

He bowed his head, then picked up the coat which had been her pillow and shook the sand from it.

"Yes. The cleft in the rock faces west, and I think the sun was setting when I found it. If we can get out before dark and make a racket, some one may be near enough to hear us."

He lighted a torch, and they walked across the sand together. At the pile of rocks he took her hand, helping and guiding her, until they came to the beginning of the ledge from where he had looked down on her sleeping form beside the fire. He told her about it as they paused for a moment's rest.

Carla looked at the fire in the pit of gloom below them. It was dying out. The yellow pool of light was narrowing and growing dimmer.

A sob came in her throat.

"We won't need—ever—to forget," she said.

"No, never."

"Especially—the little fire."

"And you—sleeping beside it," added Paul.

They continued upward. The fire was shut out. The ledge widened and turned, so they were going through a tunnel in the rock, where water had once made its way to underground depths. They had gone only a short distance when Paul stopped and smothered his torch in the sand until its flame was extinguished. After that they saw a pale reflection of light ahead of them. When they reached it they could look up through a long, narrow fissure that sloped steeply, with day at the top of it. It was a two or three hundred-yard climb, littered with broken rock, which half choked the ascent in places A mass close to them had freshly fallen.

"I spoiled my shirt on that," said Paul. "I loosened the stuff and came down with it. I hope there isn't another place like it farther up."

Paul was breathing deeply from his exertions, and Carla was fighting for breath. He could see where the sharp edges of the stones had bruised the hands which she was holding at her breast. Her skirt was torn, and through a rent in her sleeve the whiteness of her arm revealed itself. Her face was streaked with rock dust, and hollows which he had not noticed clearly before were in her cheeks and under her eyes. Over them was a broader light of day. He could have flung a stone up to the level of the earth, and beyond that was a sky of vivid blue, still touched by the glow of a declining sun. It was this light, descending in a pool upon them, which made him see another Carla. The mellowing illumination of the pitch pine, the velvety softening of shadows, the pale unreality of first daylight had concealed things from him. Now they were revealed, betraying a change which could no longer keep itself behind the mask of her courage. Something in her had died since they left the pitchwood fire. The ash of it was in her face, the ghost of it in her eyes, and she knew that he saw it and tried to smile at him bravely. He wanted to take her in his arms, and his lips almost cried out the desire. Carla saw that, too, and when the thing of iron in him triumphed over both voice and act, gratitude eased the anguish in her face.

"I'm glad you understand," she said, as if he had spoken, and knew what was in her mind. "I might run away. That would be easier for me. I could hide myself somewhere, and always love you. Nothing can kill those things—memories—and love. I would be satisfied to do that. I would be—almost—happy. But I must do the other thing. I must go to Claire It will be hard to do that."

Tribute to Father Neptune

The ceremony that takes place on board ship on crossing the equator is known as "crossing the line" and is performed for those who have never crossed the equator before. It is a very ancient practice and was probably begun as a worship of some deity. The Greeks sacrificed on nearly every prominent cape. During the Middle ages the ceremony of receiving a visit from Neptune had come into prominence. It was not performed at the equator, but on arriving in the tropics, crossing the Arctic circle, etc. It is not mentioned in connection with any of the voyages of Columbus, but in 1529 the French created a sort of order of knighthood known as Chevaliers de la Mer.

Wild

A friend of a local automobile dealer called on him and talked cautiously about buying a car for his wife. The dealer, knowing that his friend had always favored the lighter, less expensive cars was a bit puzzled at this change of heart and finally remarked:

"Of course, I'll see to it that you get the best bargain in the place but I thought your wife was more than satisfied with the little car she is now driving."

"She was," admitted the friend ruefully, "but lately she's begun to develop a 'six' appeal."—Los Angeles Times.

THE HENS

"My name is fine, it's Molly Wellington," said the hen.

That's Bright Indeed.

"I suppose it's all right, as names go," said Miss Gray Hen.

"What do you mean by saying that my name is all right as names go?

"That shows you are even more stupid than I thought."

"Why?" asked Miss Gray Hen.

"Because names don't go," said Molly Wellington. "Names haven't legs and feet with which to walk and run and play.

"Names are quiet things—they are simply names."

"That's bright indeed," said Miss Gray Hen, smiling in her funny hen way, "but I never for a moment said that names were not names.

"Of course they are. I'm bright enough to know that."

"But you said that you supposed my name was all right as names went, and I am trying to correct you from saying anything so incorrect again."

"My dear Molly Wellington, you of the fine name," said Miss Gray Hen, "I didn't mean that names went running around in circles, or along driveways, or through fields.

"I meant that as a saying. I meant that your name was all right, but that I didn't think any name was so very important, nor so very wonderful."

"Oh, that is what you meant then," said Molly Wellington. "And you didn't mean that you thought names ran and walked?"

"Of course not," said Miss Gray Hen.

"Well, even if you don't think much of names, won't you admit that mine is very nice and fancy?"

"Oh, I suppose so," said Miss Gray Hen. "But Molly Wellington, even if names don't go running or walking around—and I have never thought that they did—still names do belong to people and the people run and walk around.

"You have a name and you don't stay so still, and so I was really brighter than I thought."

Very Proud Indeed.

"Cackle, cackle, you're such a funny hen," said Molly Wellington.

"I'm a fine hen though," she continued. "I'm a champion egg layer, I've made records in the numbers of eggs I've laid.

"I lay very superior eggs. I'm a very fine and superior hen.

"Not only is my name interesting and unusual, but I've had my picture taken, and people have heard of me as a hen with a very fine record.

"The master is very proud of me, very proud indeed."

"Oh, all right," said Miss Gray Hen. "I suppose you want me to say that it's an honor to have you in the barnyard.

"All right, I'll say that."

"Thanks, thanks, cackle, cackle," said Molly Wellington.

"Cackle, cackle, you're welcome, you're welcome," said Miss Gray Hen.

Seeing Big League BASEBALL

By BILLY EVANS

Sportswriter, Big League Umpire and General Manager of the Cleveland Indians

"You can't beat thim hours, me bye, three to five." That was a favorite expression of the late Tim Hurst, when an umpire, after an unusually tough day, would express his disgust with his job.

Hurst was a pictureque character; the game probably will never know another just like him. He had a keen sense of humor, withering sarcasm that he used to advantage on the protesting players, and the courage of a spartan. Tact and diplomacy are supposed to be most necessary assets of an umpire. Tim didn't think much of either, unless gifted repartee, in which he seldom came out second best, might be so construed.

Perhaps no person connected with baseball plays a more important part in what may be termed the "artistic" success of a ball game than the umpire, yet he is merely regarded in the light of a necessary evil. Only when he fails to show up for a ball game is his worth appreciated. Aside from being a necessary evil the umpire is baseball's greatest alibi, either from the viewpoint of player or fan. If a player gets the worst of a close decision, if he is called out on a perfect third strike, he can attempt to shift the responsibility by protesting the umpire's decision. And what a relief it is to some fans after a defeat to recall how differently things would have been had the umpire called the ball hit down the third base line fair instead of foul. Fandom was a unit in regarding it as fair, but the umpire thought otherwise. The two runs that should have scored on that hit would have won the ball game.

I have said the umpire is a most important asset from an artistic standpoint; however, only a limited few umpires have had anything to do with the financial end of the game. Star players like Ruth, Johnson, Hornsby, Foxx and others of that caliber, pack them in at the gate, but it is doubtful if any umpire today is ever responsible for a single person passing through the turnstile, unless it be some friend of his with a complimentary ticket.

The announcement that Walter Johnson was to pitch was always a magnet. If Babe Ruth is on a home-run rampage the fans jam the stands to see him in action. The year that Ruth broke the home-run record by clouting sixty circuit swats, he broke and re-broke attendance records at every American league park a half-dozen times. The fans care not who umpires just so long as he does a good job of it. If he is satisfactory he draws silence, never applause. It is only when fandom disagrees with him that he receives any vocal consideration at all.

Much has been written about the competency and incompetency of the umpires, probably the last has been more widely heralded. Don't get me wrong, for I feel that the fans do like to see a game well handled by the umpires. However, I have always believed if there came a time when every decision of the umpire were considered correct, and the games always perfectly umpired, that baseball would immediately lose one of its strongest selling points. For it is really surprising the pleasure a lot of people get out of believing that had the umpire not repeatedly erred in his rulings, the home team would have been victorious. The umpire is a favorite alibi and always will be.

On this point the status of the umpire has been much improved in the last fifteen years. The attitude taken by the newspaper writers, who cover the ball games, has tended to make the work much easier. In the old days the alibi was much favored in explaining defeats through the press, and the umpire wasn't overlooked as a target. Today it is much different.

DEATH'S BUSY SEASON

As the summer approaches, with its increased tourist and other automobile traffic, death prepares to reap its richest harvest. From the homes of the United States must come 30,000 or more to die and a million others to be injured, some crippled for life, during the year—if last year's terrible record is to be equalled.

This senseless slaughter goes on in spite of all the warnings given, and in the face of the appalling waste of life held daily before our eyes.

The pitiful part of this continuous tragedy is that most of these casualties are entirely unnecessary, and might be prevented by the exercise of ordinary common sense. They are due either to an insane desire for speed, or an utter disregard for the elementary rules of safety.

Many of the victims are helpless passengers, whose lives are at the mercy of criminally reckless or incompetent drivers. Some accidents are apparently unavoidable, of course, but in the vast majority of cases they are the result of pure carelessness on the part of both motorist and pedestrians.

And even the most careful driver is often helpless when he encounters a fool on the street or highway.

BUYING PIGS IN A POKE

There is an old-time warning to the effect that one should never "buy a pig in a poke." But a lot of French people have been doing something like that, or worse, according to a press dispatch.

A concern called "French Porkery, Limited," put on a strong advertising campaign for investors, with such slogans as "Buy less stocks; they are paper. Buy more pigs; they are meat." "When your pig grows up we sell him at the very highest price. In the meantime we pay from 10 to 12 per cent interest."

Thousands bought pigs they had never seen, and for a time received their interest. Then the sad news came to all investors alike: "Your pigs have died; we could not sell sick pigs."

Then the investors—not the pigs—began to squeal. Promoters of the scheme will be tried for swindling.

FIRE THE ENEMY OF PROSPERITY

The United States is going through a period of industrial readjustment and working to solve the employment problem. It is interesting to consider the effect of our annual fire loss in this connection.

In the first place, the yearly fire waste of approximately $500,000,000 is enough to employ 200,000 people at $200 a month for one year. This alone, if constructively used, would have a salutary effect on employment.

In the second place, every fire causes an inestimable loss, indirectly, due to cessation of business and loss of time and labor. This condition is followed by unemployment and lowered purchasing power.

In the third place, every fire reduces our national wealth. Destroyed property is irreplaceable, in the broad sense. We can not be "protected" from fire. An insurance policy, for example, creates nothing new. It helps replace a property that was uselessly destroyed, and thereby uses money that could have otherwise gone into new activity.

This year fire losses have been rising. The loss during March was $1,686,578 greater than in March, 1929. No nation, no matter how wealthy, can forever afford our colossal fire waste. Fire is the enemy of prosperity.

SUN MAY COOL OFF

For many years astronomers have speculated regarding the possibility that some day the sun will have exhausted its heat and become cold.

Dr. E. L. Trevine, president of the Mexican Astronomical Society, is one who holds this view, and points out that thousands of now extinct suns are known to have existed in the dim past. In lectures at the University of Edinburgh, Prof. A. S. Eddington also expresses the belief that the universe is slowly running down, althouh he admits the possibility that the heat thrown off by the sun and other stars may be gathered again in some manner to form new suns.

In any event, Old Sol appears to be good for a billion years or more, so his ultimate end has little practical interest for us. But it is fascinating to contemplate what may be the final fate of mankind when, if ever, our solar system begins to undergo a marked change, such as these astronomers predict.

TO POLE UNDER ICE

Men have reached both Poles by land and air. One more means of reaching them remains to be tried, by submarine. Sir Hubert Wilkins, noted British aviator and eplorer, proposes to try it.

According to his audacious plan recently made public, he will submerge at Spitzbergen and attempt to navigate under the ice across the North Pole and bob up again on the coast of Alaska.

Ordinary mortals can not imagine what it is that drives daring adventurers to undertake such hazardous exploits. But when the urge to high adventure gets into the blood it seems that nothing can eradicate it.

The idea of doing something no other man has ever done before holds a fascination which for many is irresistible.

And to this unconquerable spirit of adventure the world owes most of its progress from the earliest times until now.

ANIMALS KEEP SUNDAY

An interesting fact concerning the lions, tigers and leopards in the New York Zoo is related by the director of the park.

Describing the feeding of the various animals, he states that these big representatives of the cat family are fed only red, raw meat, with an occasional dash of cod-liver oil. Beef is generally used, but horse meat is also given them at intervals. But the interesting thing concerns the day of fasting these animals must undergo once a week. The director says:

"Sunday is fast day, and they know it. On week days just before 2 o'clock the whole cat house livens up. The tigers pace about, the lions stretch and watch the front of their cages, the leopards lean over each other and like as not the pumas start an argument that may get serious before their keeper reaches their cage. But 2 o'clock on Sunday is just 2 P. M., and passes with no more attention than any other hour."

Now the question is, how do these animals know when Sunday comes? Can they count the days? There seems to be no other explanation; or if there is, the director doesn't give it.

MORE NIGHT BASEBALL

Considerable publicity was given recently to the fact that the Des Moines baseball team would play all its week-day league games at night this year, on a specially lighted field. Now comes the Independence, Kansas, team of the Western Association, which staged its first regular league game at night a week or so ahead of Des Moines. Other teams are installing night lighting systems, and it is believed that the entire Western Association will be playing under lights in a brief time.

In the line of sporting innovations we read of a plan to build a number of great athletic fields large enough to permit the playing of football under cover.

Night baseball should approve attractive to many who can not leave their work in daytime, while football indoors would add greatly to the comfort of spectators when the weather is disagreeable. Both innovations will doubtless tend towards stimulating attendance at the games.

TRUTHFUL ADVERTISING

Usually the argument is made that every business concern should advertise. Generally speaking, this is true, but there are exceptions. In fact, some concerns hardly dare to advertise, because they can not make good according to the requirements of modern business practices.

When advertising is untruthful or misleading it does more harm than good. Only an enterprise which fulfills the promises made in its advertising can stand the spotlight of publicity. Hence, when we find a store or other business establishment boldly advertising its wares or service, month after month and year after year, we may generally conclude that it can and does give real values.

Observing the advertised businesses of any community, large or small, will enable one to identify the most dependable concerns in that community. Only efficient and reputable establishments dare to advertise.

Activities arranged call for something interesting from the moment the gates of the spacious grounds are opened at 10 o'clock. A delegation of 300 members of the boosters', hostesses' and reception committees, headed by Dell Eden, Hannie McNamara, and Hannah McDonald, will extend the official welcome of the organization to Mayor Rolph and his staff.

"JOURNEY'S END" COMING TO GEARY THEATRE SUNDAY

No chances were taken by Tiffany Productions, Inc., with the technical detail and scenic investiture in filming "Journey's End," the R. C. Sheriff war play that critics have termed the most sensational stage success today. Colonel Gordon Magee, perhaps the foremost authority in Hollywood on British and foreign military regulations and atmosphere, was the technical advisor, with the aid of practically the entire staff and cast of the production. Nearly every member of "Journey's End" has seen the type of war service depicted, and this is an assurance of absolute perfection in detail.

James Whale directed this all-talking picture which comes to the Geary Theatre, San Francisco, beginning Sunday, May 25. Whale is a war veteran and also directed the original London and New York stage productions of the play. Colin Clive, matinee idol of London, who created the origing role of Stanhope in the first stage production, plays the same role in the screen version.

The story is the odddest in stage history. Without a woman in it, it has a compelling dramatic quality that makes it grip audiences. It has a love interest manifested only conversationally in dialogue between male characters regarding a girl who is never seen.

During its engagement at the Geary Theatre, "Journey's End" will be shown twice daily, once in the afternoon and again in the evening.

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderlie at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall Drug Store. Edwards' Drug Store, Mission street, near San Jose avenue.

CHAMPION WOMAN LOOPER

Another remarkable airplane feat by a woman was performed a few days ago when Miss Laura Ingalls of New York made 344 consecutive loops over a field at St. Louis, setting a new world's record for women.

But that was not all. After replenishing her gasoline from a reserve tank while in the air, she made sixty-six additional loops before landing, but those did not count for the record. The total of 410 loops was made in an hour and 45 minutes at an altitude of 8,000 feet.

Upon landing Miss Ingalls expressed disappointment that she had to stop to refuel, as she had set out to make 400 consecutive loops. Her great record was an official one, however, as her performance was checked by representatives of the International Aeronautic Federation, who used field glasses and a counting machine to verify the number of loops made.

Miss Ingalls is 25 years old, and recently received her transport pilot's license, being the fifteenth woman in the United States to qualify under the rigid requirements for such a lincense.

The courage and skill of the rapidly increasing number of women flyers compels the highest admiration.

AMERICAN LEGION WOMEN TO SELL POPPIES TOMORROW

Tomorrow, Saturday, May 24, will be "poppy day" for the American Legion Auxiliary in California, and upon that date, the Saturday before Memorial Day, the disabled and ill American World war veterans will be aided from the sale of the memorial poppies, according to Mrs. Ethel M. Flynn, secretary of the American Legion Auxiliary.

"The Saturday before Memorial Day has been adopted almost everywhere in the United States as the day for paying tribute to the men who lost their lives in the World war, by wearing the poppy," Mrs. Flynn explained. "The various units of the Auxiliary are preparing to give every man, woman and child in the city an opportunity to wear the poppy this year. We will have our poppy workers in all parts of the city throughout the day and hope by the end of the day to have placed a poppy on every coat."

CONTROVERSY OVER PATERNITY OF CHILD

The paternity of an 18-months-old infant is the subject of a court controversy being heard in San Francisco, where Mrs. Lottie E. McLaughlin is seeking to prove that Fred Wolber, firemean, is the baby's father.

Erwin Winterhalder, prominent sculptor, told the court that the zygomatic arch, the portion of the skull between the cheekbone and the ear, was similar in the child to that of Wolber. A birth certificate registered in Daly City, in which Mrs. McLaughlin named her divorced husband, John McLaughlin, as the baby's father, was introduced by Attorney Joseph Taafe. A subsequent birth certificate, registered in Sacramento, February 25, 1929, in which Mrs. MacLaughlin made an affidavit that her former husband was not the child's father, but that Wolber was, was then presented by Attorney Joseph de Martini, representing Mrs. McLaughlin.

John McLaughlin made an airplane trip from Gelendale, Cal., to St. Louis at the age of four weeks, accompanied by his mother.

Appel: "My son is a jack of all trades. What shall I do with him?"
Sass: "Buy him a drug store."

Better Business—Better Living
Better Living—Better Business

Did you ever stop to consider that most of the three score and ten years—the proverbial span of life—is spent in the Business of Living?

This Business of Living consists of trying to keep from starving or freezing—trying to live comfortably—getting our share of happiness out of life. To achieve this end we must all put forth an effort to accomplish, as the years go by.

Owing to the present complicated state of civilization—of which we are all a part—our efforts differ widely.

In this country less than half of us can produce more food and raw materials than all of us can consume.

This means that more than half of us must earn our living by making, distributing and marketing the products and services of benefit to one another.

No longer is each family a self-contained unit—producing all that the family needs. Today, as never before, we are dependent upon one another to successfully carry on the Business of Life.

Through depending upon others for the greater share of our needs there has been developed that all-important factor to human existence called Business.

Business today is carried out on the highest plane in the history of mankind. Our ancestors may have suffered in their business dealings in the days when the commercial slogan was "Buyer Beware!" Fortunately, the march of progress has forced such practices from the field.

Today the requirements for success demand that Business render a fair and honest service. Never has the phrase "he profits most who serves best" been so true as it is today.

Service has made for Better Business and it has also made Business better! Better Business means Better Living. Better Living means Better Business.

If you have a "Better Business-Better Living" idea, pass it on to a business friend. Every concern represented in these pages is furnishing goods and services that make for better living. Their fundamental policy is the rule: "The most service and the best, at the least cost to the user." They realize that by fair and honest business methods they can contribute to Better Living in the community of

CLUB WOMEN ENDORSE HOOVER PEACE MOVE

Again asserting their stand on all law enforcement measures and the World Court, the California Federation of Women's Clubs, assembled at Oakland for the twenty-ninth annual convention, voted unanimously to send the following telegram to President Hoover, presented by Mrs. Robert J. Burdette, Pasadena:

"We, the members of the California Federation of Women's Clubs, in convention assembled, express to you our appreciation of your untiring work for world peace as evidenced by your promotion of the London Conference and the World Court; for law observacne and for child welfare, together with other measures which lie near the heart of the women of the land."

The 1931 convention will be held in San Joaquin Valley in response to the invitation of Mrs. W. G. James, Hanford, president of San Joaquin Valley district. The exact town in which it will be held has not yet been decided.

More than 5,000 club women of California attended the three day session of the twenty-ninth annual convention of the California Federation of Women's Clubs.

Egypt now has telephone communication with Palestine and Transjordania, and negotiations are pending to extend the service to Syria and the Sudan. It is expected that wireless telephonic communication will be established with Europe in the near future, and, ultimately, with the world in general.

FISH AND GAME NOTES

By J. H. NEUSTADT

At the Associated Sportsmen's recent convention it was advocated that "the plan of granting to the Fish and Game Commission full power to regulate seasons, bag limits, define fish and game districts, and make such other necessary rules and regulations to restore and perpetuate the supply of fish and game in California."

In summing up the measure it was stated that the new system would confer the following benefits:

1. Speed up action on changes in fish and game regulations, thereby guaranteeing more effective and certain administration.

2. Decision on regulations placed with experts who by knowledge and experience are best qualified. Responsibility for results fixed by these officials.

3. Ability to regulate in times of emergency and to control the numbers and welfare of fish and game during epidemic or unforseen changes in conditions affecting fish and game resources.

4. Supplies necessary authority to permit the Fish and Game Commission to make good on the responsibilities with which they aer charged, thereby developing that pride and satis faction which goes with success.

A compilation of deer tags shows that 21,220 deer were killed by hunters during the 1929 open season in California. This is 295 less than the count for 1928.

Mendocino county leads this year with a total of 1,355 deer killed. Last year in this county the count was 1,468.

Siskiyou county, which topped the 1928 list with 1,654, was second in the 1929 count with a total of 1,211. Lake county held its own in third place with 841, but this was less than the 1928 total of 1,038. In Los Angeles county the hunters had better luck than in 1928, as the tags from that large county show 691 this year as against 369 for the last season. Sutter county, with two deer killed, had the smallest number, while in San Francisco and Sacramento counties the records show no deer were taken. Last year two fell before the guns of the nimrods in Sacramento county.

The halibut is the largest of the flat edible fish and is found in both the North Pacific and North Atlantic oceans.

Its greatest abundance is found off British Columbia, and Captain Cook, the explorer, recorded in 1778 that 300 were caught by his crew in one morning.

An astonishing feature is that when young these fish swim upright like most fish and with one eye on each side, they later acquire the habit of lying on one side with the head twisted sidewise, when nature asserts herself and both eyes appear on the upper surface.

This is one of the most fascinating problems in marine biology.

This fish has an inner ear but no external ear, and in the ear develops a stone which grows in size from year to year by deposits from the outside.

Halibut matures in eleven years and only occasionally earlier, and has been known to live for forty years.

Their growth is slow, but more rapid in southern waters than in the north, and a singular thing is the greater weight attained by females, which have been taken up to 400 pounds, while the males average 80 pounds, and a 100 pound male is a rarity.

The prodigality of nature is shown by the fact that the largest females produce as many as five million eggs.

In 1928 some 8,000 were tagged and liberated for government study, and as the average value is $2 each, some idea may be obtained of the expense incurred in getting statistics.

Tagging first began in 1925. In two years 1,000 tagged fish had been recaught and showed 98 per cent had traveled less than 100 miles, 95 per cent less than 50 miles, 85 per cent less than 25 miles, and 75 per cent less than 10 miles, indicating the majority of fish remained near its own banks.

The northern fish are greater travelers than the southern, the latter varying from 300 to 600 miles, but are never taken south of Icy Straits.

Experiments are now going on in Alaska, and illuminating information should soon be obtained.

FULL-WIDTH ROAD MORE PRACTICAL

Many good roads advocates have believed that it was good practice to build half a full-width pavement on farm-to-market roads, and later, when funds were available, build the other half.

Experience has proven this to be an expensive method, however, and even a half-width of pavement such as is laid on state highways costs more than it is practical to spend on the average farm-to-market, or secondary road.

The American Farm Bureau Federation has been emphasizing the necessity of increasing the mileage of these farm-to-market roads. Good surfaces for such roads can be constructed of suitable materials to make them water and dust proof, at an extremely low cost.

The all-year-round farm-to-market road provides real farm relief, and the mileage should be extended in conjunction with every state highway.
